REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT,
JAMES A. GARFIELD, OF OHIO.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,
CHESTER A. ARTHUR,
OF NEW YORK,

THE NOMINATION OF GARFIELD.

The nomination of James A. Garfield for President is a happy issue out of all the difficulties which surrounded the situation in the Republican National Convention at Chicago. It was apparent several days ago, as stated by the Gazette, that neither General Grant nor Senator Blaine could be nominated. There was a determination on the part of the managers and friends of each of these candidates, not to yield an inch of ground to the other. Through all the ballots Grant's friends stuck to him with remarkable pertenacity. They had made up their minds to stand firm for the great soldier, and when the time come for some one to break, Wisconsin led off for Garfield, and other delegations soon followed. The friends of Blaine were satisfied that the "Plumed Knight" could not be nominated. As the ballots increased in number his strength failed. Friends deserted him and threw their ballots in a direction which would put an end to the great contest. Other delegations followed in like manner and in rapid succession, and Garfield, who was not a candidate before the Convention, triumphed.

This nomination was born of wisdom and prudence. It places in the field a man for President who stands to-day conspicuous for his ability as a statesman and his downright integrity as a man. Among all our public men, those who have been prominent in the halls of Congress, there is not one who is more to be honored and applauded than James A. Garfield. During his term of service in the House of Representatives which covers a period of nearly eighteen years, he has not been engaged in any of those schemes against which the people have a prejudice, and which have stained the reputation of some of our public men. He is a man who stands pre-eminently a man of the people—a man of unimpeachable honor, wise in his conduct, fearless in his defense of the right, and always representing with the highest skill, the best interests of the country.

This is James A. Garfield, the standard-bearer of the Republican party in the mighty political struggle which must take place in 1880 Now, it becomes the duty of the Republican party to elect him. There is no reason to doubt that he can be elected. There are no grounds on which his nomination can be criticised. The managers for General Grant—Conkling, Cameron and Logan, and all their followers—have no excuse for not entering heartily in the campaign. All those who oppose the third term, and especially the so-called "independent scratchers," can find no cause to scratch Garfield. The ten thousand civil service reformers of New York, who signed a pledge not to support Grant if he were nominated, find in Garfield the highest principle of all that is practical and good in civil service reform. The Blaine men cannot object to Garfield because the fastest friends of the Maine Senator gave Garfield their cordial and unbroken support. In short, there are none in the Republican party who can by the strictest search, find a reason why they should not support him with all the energy and soul they possess. He challenges the darts which his political enemies may hurl at him He commands the admiration of his party, claims the confidence of the whole people, and will be triumphantly elected.]

All honor to Wisconsin for the great part it took in nominating Garfield! It was among the very first to give him its votes, and this course drew from the crowded galleries in the hall the most rapturous applause. When the Wisconsin delegation took that line of action, it inspired the Convention, and in two ballots, the vote for Garfield rose from 17 to 399 Wisconsin may justly claim the honor of naming the next Republican President. It did that which was an act of the highest honor, and one which will carry the Republican party to a proud victory.

Scenes and Incidents During the Last and Final Ballot.

The Nomination of Chester A. Arthur, for Vice President.

HOW IT WAS DONE.

How the Nomination of Garfield was Made.

CHICAGO, June 8—The thirty-third ballot brought a change. Georgia, which had been voting seven each for Grant and Blaine, and eight for Sherman, voted eight for Grant, nine for Blaine and five for Sherman. The Washburne men in Illinois returned to him. Wisconsin, on the other hand, finding it had overdone the thing in Washburne's behalf, drew out two and gave them back to Blaine.

The thirty-fourth ballot brought a further appreciable change. Grant gained one each in Alabama, Tennessee and one in Wisconsin. The last named State made a bold break for Garfield, giving him sixteen. The Garfield boom was being very busily pushed on the floor of the Convention at this time, by what is known as "missionary effort." An effort had been made a moment before to break the Mississippi delegation in his behalf. Ohio simply spread itself all over the floor, and was exceedingly busy until the announcement was made.

Garfield mounted a chair while the cheering was still high. Butterworth tried unsuccessfully to get him down again. He protested against the use of his name. The chair ruled him out of order, and the next ballot went on.

On the thirty-fifth ballot Grant got one each from Minnesota and Pennsylvania. Garfield got 27 from Indiana, 4 in Maryland, 1 in Minnesota, and 16 in Wisconsin.

This, being the largest change that has yet taken place, created something very like a mass meeting took place in the neighborhood of the Ohio delegation. Grant was slowly pushing ahead, and Garfield was running the lesser fellows down.

The wildest excitement here set in. It was found impossible to keep the convention in order. The delegates left their seats and gathered in knots in different parts of the house. The audience rose and cheered, throwing hats and handkerchiefs into the air. It was evident

A STAMPEDE WAS IMMINENT.

Conkling left his seat and was exceedingly busy about the aisle. Logan sat perfectly unmoved. Hale joined in a caucus of the maine delegation. New Jersey was in confusion. A dense crowd struggled about Garfield's seat. Garfield himself sat pale and evidently excited, talking earnestly with Butterworth and Dennison. Butterworth tried in vain to keep the crowd back.

THE ROLL WAS CALLED

while the noise was so loud that the call could not be heard. Garfield made a gain in Connecticut, at which the uproar was renewed and increased. Seven of the Illinois 'kickers" went over to Garfield. Indiana consolidated all but her one Grant vote on Garfield. Then Henderson, of Iowa, rising out of the disorder, roared the disposition of his State: "Iowa, twenty-two for James A. Garfield, of Ohio. This was recognized as and every Blaine man on the floor took the signal. The six Kansas man flocked in, and were followed by three in Kentucky and eight in Louisiana. When Maine was called, the galleries quieted and looked down at Hale, who stood upon his chair and delivered the vote of his State to Garfield. From that time there was little use in keeping the run of it.

GRANT'S VOTE REMAINED FAST.

The vote of all the other candidates was swallowed up in Garfield's. There was a hitch at Tennessee, and another at Virginia, polls being demanded. When West Virginia was called Mr Campbell arose with a grim smile of satisfaction. His time to pay a debt of revenge and one of gratitude at the same had then come. Mounting his chair, and turning with a look of defiance at Conkling, he shouted: "West Virginia remembers her friend, and casts nine votes for James A Garfield, of Ohio" By the time it had reached Wisconsin the result lay within her power to decide. Conkling and Logan had gone over to that corner. Judge Cassoday arose and delivered the vote—

ALL BUT ONE FOR GARFIELD.

The convention relapsed into the wildest confusion at this. The heavily Grant delegations alone sat quiet, and with serious faces. They had lost. The majority left their places altogether and trooped over toward Ohio. The banners of the states were plucked up and grouped over Garfield's head.

For twenty minutes there was the utmost tumult. The band, almost unheard in the uproar, struck up "We'll Rally Around the Flag" The noise of a salute outside the building was barely heard. When had been finished, the chair ordered it verified, and then announced as follows:

Garfield	399	Sherman	8
Grant	306	Washburne	5
Blaine	44

Conkling made a motion to

NOMINATE GARFIELD UNANIMOUSLY,

and was joined in that motion by Logan, and followed by Grant republicans in most of the other states. At 2:30 o'clock a recess until 5 o'clock was taken.

IN THE EVENING.

The Convention was slow in getting to work in the evening on its business of nominating a candidate for the Vice Presidency. It was nearly half-past 5 o'clock when the president called the statesmen to order.

The first business of the session—namely, the nomination of a candidate for Vice President—was next taken up, and when California was reached in the call of States, Colonel Pixley, arose in his seat and nominated

ELIHU B. WASHBURNE.

The nomination was seconded by Ohio.

Connecticut, through its spokesman, put forward the name of Marshall Jewell, as the man above all others who would command the support of the united Republicans of the nation.

When Florida was reached, Col. Hicks named Judge Thomas Settle, of Florida.

The nomination was seconded by Mr Harris, a colored orator from North Carolina, in a speech of much vigor.

Congressman Conger, of Michigan, rose to state that he had been instructed by a resolution of the State convention to present the name of Sedator Ferry but that he had received a letter from the senator declining to go before the convention.

Gen. Houk, chairman of the Tennessee delegation advanced the name of Horace Maynard, and passed a glowing eulogy upon him. Arkansas seconded the motion.

New York had a candidate,

GEN. CHESTER A. ARTHUR,

whose claims were ably championed by Gen. Stewart L. Woodford and by Dennison of Ohio. The speech relating to Mr. Arthur were neat and effective, neither too long nor too short, nor too full of honey to go down with a relish.

Gen. Kilpatrick, with his customary vehemence of oratorical effort, also seconded the nomination.

He was followed by Emery A. Storrs, of Illinois, who also seconded the nomination, and paid an eloquent tribute to the character of General Arthur. Mississippi, Maryland and Missouri fell into line. Mr. Lynch, of Mississippi, a colored brother, spoke of Senator Bruce as being very good timber, but on the whole he would prefer the New York Soldier as being more available. Mr. Filley spoke for Missouri, and cordially pledged the support of Missouri Republicans to General Arthur.

Chamberlain, of Texes, presented the name of ex-Governor Edmund K. Davis.

Colonel Hicks, of Florida, at this point erected himself upon his chair again, this time to withdraw the name of Judge Settle. Mr Harris, who had seconded Settle's nomination, joined Colonel Hicks, and, like him, seconded the nomination of Chester A. Arthur, and pledged fifteen thousand Republican majority in North Carolina for Garfield and Arthur in November.

Campbell, of West Virginia, came up smiling once more, with a red-hot speech for Washburne. He was greatly exercised lest the convention was about to do a rash thing in the nomination of General Arthur, and stultify itself before the country.

The call of the States was then made resulting in the nomination of Hon. Chester A. Arthur, as candidate for Vice President by the following vote:

Arthur	468
Washburne	193
Jewell	41
Woodford	1
Maynard	30
Settle	1
Bruce	8
Davis	2
James L Alcorn	4

The nomination having been disposed of, the Convention proceeded to the adoption of the customary to the chairman. Mr. Conger introduced a resolution directing the appointment of a committee of one from each State and Territory to notify James A. Garfield and Chester A. Arthur of their nominations.

On motion of a Missouri delegate the Convention then adjourned without delay, but not until the chairman had returned his grateful acknowledgements to the Convention for the forbearance it had shown throughout the sessions and for the manner in which it had sustained him from the beginning to the end.

And then the hall was slowly cleared, and thus terminated one of the most notable National Conventions ever held by the Republican party.

THE FEELING.

The Manner in Which the Nominations are Received.

SHERMAN TO GARFIELD.

WASHINGTON, June 8—The Hon. James A. Garfield, Chicago, Ill.: I congratulate you with all my heart upon your nomination as President of the United States. You have saved the Republican party and the country from a great peril, and assured the continued success of Republican principles. JOHN SHERMAN.

BLAINE TO GARFIELD.

WASHINGTON, June 8—To the Hon. James A. Garfield, Chicago: Maine's vote this moment cast for you goes with my hearty concurrence. I hope it will aid in securing your nomination and assuring victory to the Republican party. JAMES G. BLAINE.

GENERAL GRANT.

GALENA, Ill., June 8—The nomination of Garfield and Arthur is well received by the Republicans of this city. General Grant, on receiving the news, remarked to the large crowd surrounding him: "Gentlemen, the Convention has nominated men whom all can support, and I predict their election, no matter who the opposition put up against them." This afternoon the ex-President sent a warm congratulatory telegram to Mr. Garfield. The General, in company with Colonel W. R. Rowley, will leave this evening for Milwaukee, via. Chicago, to attend the Wisconsin Soldiers' Convention.

AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 8—In the Senate the news was received with more formality and decorum, though perhaps not with less enthusiasm than in the House. The Sundry Civil bill was under discussion. Dispatches announcing the nomination were received and the chances of the ticket considered. A dispatch was sent in these words to General Garfield which was drafted by Morrill, of Vermont: "All Republican Senators present their congratulations" Blaine and General Sherman appeared in the Senate Chamber almost as soon as the announcement of the news had been made.

BLAINE HAD RECEIVED INFORMATION

at his own room, and he immediately started for the Senate. Blaine was cheerful and smilin. General Sherman remarked that he did not care a great deal so long as Ohio got it. Senator Blaine was soon surrounded by Senators who extended their condolence and sympathy, but Mr. Blaine did not seem to care for the one or need the other. He soon took his seat and was engaged in the ordinary business of legislation, apparently more indifferent of the proceedings at Chicago than any other Senator in the chamber. He made two short speeches, one upon the result of a conference committee, and the other upon an amendment to the Legislative bill, and certainly did not appear like a greatly disappointed man or like an "Achilles sulking in his tent."

GRANT IN MILWAUKEE.

Special to the Gazette.

MILWAUKEE, June 9—General Grant arrived on a special train from Chicago, at 11:46 this morning. There were thousands of people at the depot to welcome him; and when he stepped from the car, the cheers from the multitude were terrific and prolonged. Carriages were waiting, which conveyed General Grant, General Sheridan and staff, and Governor Smith and staff, to General Hamilton's residence, where Grant will remain during his stay in the city. The Lighthouse Squadron acted as escort, and the streets along the line of march were densely thronged, and the loud and continued applause which greeted the General showed that he has yet a firm hold on the hearts of the people.

The late arrival of General Grant has delayed the grand procession until to-morrow. It rained a good share of the forenoon which materially interfered with the programme at Camp Reunion.

The camp ground is very wet, which makes the accommodations for the soldiers very unpleasant in some respects.

Colonel Britton received quite an ovation yesterday, having been met at the depot by one hundred of the old members of the Eighth Wisconsin, a band of music and the war eagle.

THE RE-UNION.

MILWAUKEE, June 8—The decoration of business blocks and public buildings not only, but of private residences throughout the city, are being continued with splendid enthusiasm by the citizens, each seeming to vie good naturedly in securing a more attractive show of bunting than his neighbor.

The result is, the streets are everywhere profusely adorned, and their artificial ornamentation with flankings on all sides of the flourishing green in the June growth of grass and trees, render the city altogether worthy in its beauty of the grand event of the soldiers' re-union, in whose honor the gala dress of the municipality is worn.

AT THE HOTELS,

The Newhall house management has made a tremendous effort to bunk all applicants, and will succeed in putting the arms of Morpheus around about 1,500 guests to-night. The resort to cots to the number of 500 has been made, and no effort will be spared to have cots "as soft as they make 'em." The soldier element naturally centers in this caravansery, because Governor Smith and staff, besides several notable military men are there "at home."

At the Plankinton the proprietor has arranged to put up 400 cots, and the house will shelter from 800 to 1,000 to-night.

The Kirby house is brimming full, and will cover about 900 nostrils to-night. About 300 of these breath furnishers are to be on cots. The culinary department is said to be fully stocked, and the intention is to feed every guest and every transient as only the Kirby does feed its patrons.

A DAUGHTER OF THE REGIMENT.

The Richland county delegation, 480 strong, arrived late yesterday afternoon, and by evening were comfortably quartered at the camp. They brought blankets and camp utensils with them, and abundance of music, and their passage through the streets to the camp was greeted with rousing cheers. A little eight year old "daughter of the regiment," handsomely equipped as a juvenile "Goddess of Liberty," marched with the sunbrowned veterans, and prompted a "welling out of enthusiasm" through all the crowds that saw the brave marching of the tiny child.

Lieutenant John L. Clem, Professor of Military Science in the Academy of Galesville, known to fame as "the drummer boy of the Chickamaqua," has arrived in the city and is a guest at the residence of Captain Kasson. The captain who is secretary of the general executive committee of the reunion, is by the way, one of the hardest worked men in Milwaukee, and his opportunities for visiting with home guests are decidedly slight.

General Halbert E. Paine will arrive in the city this afternoon and will be properly received by a detail of veterans.

The Eighth Wisconsin regiment war eagle was brought to the city to-day at noon, and was properly "received" by a delegation of the regiment as he deserved to be.

AT THE CAMP TO-DAY.

General E W Hincks, commander-in-chief, with his aide-de camp, Captain King, arrived at camp headquarters this forenoon and at once set about getting things in running order.

HEADQUARTERS.

The military headquarters are situated in the northeast quarter of the camp in the center of which there is a flag staff with the colors flying from its peak.

The tent of the commander-in-chief flanked by those of his aides and the officers of the guard occupies the middle place on the south side of the square, while in the corresponding place on the north side is the tent of Governor Smith.

On the right of the governor's tent is that of the Adjutant General, Colonel W. F. Vilas. On the left, Colonel Gabe Bouck, Quartermaster Gen'l, has his headquarters. Just east of the Quartermaster General is the color tent, where are deposited the colors of the veteran regiments of the State. To the left of the Adjutant General's tent is that of the Executive Committee where will be found Colonel Pier and Captain Kasson, of the Committee.

CRACK COMPANIES.

Yesterday afternoon at three o'clock two companies of militia in uniform, headed by Clauder's band, entered the camp under the grand arch.

The Mauston Light Guards, fifty strong, followed the band with arms at a "right shoulder shift." Their uniform is a very tasty, showy one of blue, with wide white trimmings, and the men act as though they meant business for the competitive drill of Thursday.

Following the Mauston boys come the Sherman Guard of Neillsville. This company's uniform is blue with red trimmings, and while it is not so showy as the one above mentioned, it is very handsome, and the men numbering sixty one are of large size. They carried their arms at a "shoulder" when entering the grounds and then came to a "right shoulder shift."

Halting in the north division of the east side of the camp the Maustons "stacked" arms and the Shermans "grounded" arms, while quarters were being picked out for them.

The Shermans were assigned to tents already up, while the Maustons, who had brought their camp equipage, went to work at the business of pitching their tents, and so industriously occupied themselves until night.

The Guppy Guards, Captain Wormer, of Portage, also reported at camp late last evening, and were assigned to quarters on the north-east side of the camp. The "Guppys" are a fine looking set of men, quick in their movements and their uniform of grey gives them a very neat appearance. This company numbers 56.

The Unity Guard reported this morning and are now luxuriating in the play of camp life. The Unity boys will make a hard fight for the first place in the competition of Thursday. Their uniform is blue with narrow black trimmings.

THEY ARE VETERANS.

The Sherman Guard of Neillsville are largely composed of the old boys who went with the officer for whom their organization is named, or the famed "March to the Sea." On their arrival in camp yesterday the old fever of camp life broke out all over in spots on the boys and they at once held a council of war. The results of the council is seen in their camp where the cook of the company holds his sway supreme and seems all too happy, as he handles kettles and frying pans with all the skill that long acquaintance with camp fires begets. The boys brought their camp equipage and provisions and are now happy under their own vine and fig tree.

A "CEREMONIAL."

CHICAGO, June 9—Shortly after eleven o'clock on last night, the gentlemen composing the committee appointed by the Convention to formally notify General Garfield and General Arthur of their nomination as candidates for the offices of President and Vice President, respectively, assembled in the club room of the Grand Pacific hotel.

In response to the official notification of his nomination, announced by Senator Hoar, General Garfield said:

MR. CHAIRMAN AND GENTLEMEN: I assure you that the information you have officially given me brings the sense of very grave responsibility, and especially so in view of the fact that I was a member of your body—a fact that could not have existed with propriety had I had the slightest expectation that my name would be connected with the nomination for the office. I have felt with you great solicitude concerning the situation of our party, during the struggle, but believing that you are correct in assuring me that substantial unity has been reached in the conclusion, it gives me a gratification far greater than any personal pleasure your announcement can bring. I accept the trust committed to my hands. As to the work of our party, as to the character of the campaign to be entered upon, I will take an early occasion to reply more fully than I can properly do to-night. I thank you for the assurances of confidence and esteem and unity which you have presented to me, and shall hope we shall see our future as promising as are the indications to-night.

General Arthur accepted his nomination in the following words:

I am deeply sensible, Mr Chairman, of the honor conferred upon me. I accept the nomination, and shall endeavor, if elected, to discharge its duties faithfully and conscientiously, and to the best of my ability. I will reply more formally at some future time.

HAYES TO GARFIELD.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, D. C., June 8, 1870.—General James A. Garfield:—You will receive no heartier congratulations to-day than mine. This both for your own and your country's sake (Signed). R. B. HAYES.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE For CATARRH

A purely vegetable distillation entirely unlike all other remedies.

In the preparation of this remarkable remedy every herb, plant and bark is subjected to distillation, whereby the essential medical principle is obtained in vapor, condensed and bottled. What remains in the still is inert, valueless, and totally unfit for use in an organism so delicate as the nasal passage. Yet all snuffs are insoluble compounds of woody fibre; all tinctures, saturated solutions.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE

Is a local and constitutional remedy, and is applied to the nasal passages by insufflation, thus allaying inflammation and pain, and at once correcting, cleansing and purifying the secretions. Internally administered, it acts upon the organs of circulation, keeps the skin moist, and neutralizes the acid poison that has found its way into the stomach and thence into the blood. Thus a cure progresses in both directions, and it does not seem possible for human ingenuity to devise a more rational treatment.

SURPRISING CURE.

Gentlemen.—About twelve years ago, while travelling with Father Kemp's Old Folks Concert Troupe as a tenor singer, I took a severe cold and was laid up at Newark, N.J. This cold brought on a severe attack of Catarrh, which I battled with every known remedy for four weeks without avail, and was finally obliged to give up a most desirable position and return home, unable to sing a note. For three years afterwards I was unable to sing at all. The first attack of Catarrh had left my nasal organs and throat so sensitive that the slightest cold would bring on a fresh attack, leaving me prostrated. In this way I continued to suffer. The last attack, the severest I ever had, was terrible. I suffered the most excruciating pain in my head, was so hoarse as to be scarcely able to speak, and coughed incessantly. I thought I was going into quick consumption, and I firmly believe that had these symptoms continued without relief they would have rendered me an easy victim. When in this distressing condition, I commenced the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH, very reluctantly, I confess, as I had tried all the advertised remedies without benefit. The first dose of this wonderful medicine gave me the greatest relief. It is hardly possible for one whose head aches, eyes ache, who can scarcely articulate distinctly on account of the choking accumulations in his throat, to realize how much relief I obtained from the first application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE. Under its influence, both internal and external, I rapidly recovered, and by an occasional use of the remedy since, have been entirely free from Catarrh, for the first time in twelve years.

Respectfully yours, GEO. W. HOLBROOK.

WILLIAMS AT GETTYSBURG.

The Oration of Hon Chas. G Williams, Delivered at Gettysburg, on Decoration Day.

Hon. Charles G. Williams, of Wisconsin, the orator of the day, was then introduced and delivered an eloquent address, which was frequently applauded and at the close was greeted with marked manifestations of approval. We have the pleasure of presenting to the readers of the Star and Sentinel, a verbatim report of the address.

THE ORATION.

Mr. Chairman, Soldiers and Citizens:

We stand on the historic ground of Gettysburg!

Few places on earth possess a more enduring interest. Here a nation's life was rescued, and here its defenders lie buried! Here the soldiers of the republic, both the living and the dead, won imperishable renown, and here the words of Abraham Lincoln linger in immortal memory.

Though these ceremonies are of annual recurrence, the things they commemorate can never grow old. These rocks and gorges, these groves and fields, tell a story as fresh and vivid now, as when seventeen years ago the thunders of war broke over this peaceful village. It is the dead rather than the living who speak here to-day. Deeds, not words, hold the thought of the hour. These silent graves plead with a pathos which human tongues may never master.

It is most befitting, with the return of the seasons, and when spring is just merging into summer, that we come again to pay this annual tribute; for I take it, that the martial hosts who crossed yonder mountain range, and came on to Gettysburg with sabre and cannon, and bayonet and banner, were not more potential in shaping human destiny, than the processions moving in all our country to day, bearing garlands of flowers to lay upon the graves of its loved ones.

Yes! it is well, in the midst of this fragrance and bloom, and in the light of awakened affection that we come again to renew our devotion to the dead and to read once more the lesson which their example has taught us. Its external facts can never escape us here. They rise before us unbidden. We see again where Buford fought and where Reynolds fell. And that first volley, fired by Pennsylvania sons in defence of Pennsylvania soil, rings out as sharp and clear to day as when treason belched its fires upon this liberty loving State. Nor will Pennsylvanians ever forget how quickly the guns of Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana caught up the chorus and sent it echoing through these hills.

Again, the devoted First and Eleventh Corps move over these ridges to confront the whole rebel army. And again, all down the line and far out upon the right, the men of Pennsylvania and the east respond to the grand old Iron Brigade of the West.

There were no State lines then. Your soil was our soil; it drank the blood of our fathers and brothers, and in it sleep to-day the bodies of some of our bravest and best. What could better cement the foundations of a nation? What fitter figure to crown a scene like that than glorious old John Burns, late on that summer afternoon, fighting single-handed in yonder open field, and though wounded and weltering in his blood still dauntless and defiant to the foe.

Who would ever forget these things, while patriotism has a virtue, or heroism has a name!

I need not recount how that battle line struggled and fought; how it was torn by shot and shell; yet closed and rallied again, until overborne by superior numbers it was pressed back through these fields and village streets until at nightfall it rested across this hill; and rested here to recede no more forever. For it was on this crest that rebellion touched its high water mark in the path, and rolled gurgling back to its home in the south.

Nor need I, a mere civilian, attempt a minute description of the second day's struggle. How the battle opened on the left wing and on the right. How the line of fire surged back and forth. How men fought through the "Peach Orchard" and the "Wheat field." How Sickles was borne bleeding from the field; and how at last the enemy, as if maddened by the denial of the prize he thought so easy, massed his forces, and pressed on—and on—and on—until in yonder valley the tigers of the South met the lions of the North, and night closed in upon a scene of carnage and death such as pitying heaven scarce ever saw before. Yet, when the smoke of battle had lifted, the two Round Tops, in Union hands, stood out in the moonlight, staunch as the Republic and strong as the fortress of the gods. And again the decree went forth, "thus far shalt thou go but no farther, and here let thy proud waves be stayed."

If both tongue and pen falter before the scenes of this day, what shall portray the hell and horror of the next? The fitful fire of the night, the morning's advance and repulse, the noonday stillness, the portentous note of preparation, the battle field shimmering in the soft summer air far into the afternoon, and then the final explosions that shook both the earth and sky.

One hundred and fifty guns run to the front, and simultaneous from "their brazen throats leaped tongues of flame," filling the air with flying missiles, and raining a storm of iron down upon the crouching forms of brave men hugging the ground, or clinging to the rocks and trees and bushes along these slopes. Every form of missile was employed. One writer says: "Every size and form of shell known to British and American gunnery shrieked, moaned and whistled, and wrathfully fluttered over the ground."

Men were blown to atoms, and horses reared and plunged in their death agonies. The Union lines responded, and between the two roared the furnace fires of hell. For an hour and three quarters the angry storm continued. The earth was gashed and torn, and great forest trees, denuded of their leaves and branches, looked down upon the scene as if nature herself stood aghast at "man's inhumanity to man."

Such was the closing struggle. How did men endure it, and why did victory perch upon the banners of the North? It was not superority of numbers: it was not great generalship: it was not strategetic art. I attribute it to one fact and one alone. The battle of Gettysburg was fought on Northern soil. Each soldier knew and felt the issue. He knew that if Gettysburg failed, Harrisburg must fall; Baltimore was gone; Washington was lost; Rebellion was triumphant.

It was this thought that fired every brain and nerved every arm. The Union ranks were no longer filled with soldiers of the line, but each man stood full "six cubits" high, a sovereign American citizen fighting for his fireside and his home. Is it any wonder that the Union army were invincible or that its shattered columns closed again and again and drove themselves like thunderbolts of fate against the rebel advance?

The giant of the north had been goaded in his home, and rising in wrathful strength clutched treason by the throat and hurled it headlong from these hills.

Such, sketched in rough outline, was the battle of Gettysburg in its external and physical surroundings. What was its significance to our country and ourselves? Was it a great National tournament in which the two sections rode out like mailed warriors to test their strength and skill?

Some have so seemed to regard it, and have seemed to suppose that a few fine phrases addressed to the generosity of the soldiers, a little judicious talk of the "blue and the grey," a few huzzas from opposing regiments, and an eager interlocking of arms in political assemblages, was all that was needed to blot out and bury in oblivion forever the events and causes of our great civil war. What supposition could be more absurd, or what idea more diametrically opposed to vital truth?

True, men fought on this field, as man scarce ever fought before; but ideas and principles fought as well. While mortals contended here, diverse civilizations, the growth of generations if not of centuries, fought like giants in the upper air, and while mortal might overcame mortal no event ever did or ever can change a whole civilization in a day. Events may be the indispensible conditions of change and future growth, but time and logical methods can alone work out practical results.

Marathon rolled back the tide of Persian invasion and allowed western civilization to take root in Grecian soil; but had Persian customs and Persian ideas been invited at once to the Athenian capitol, the valor of Miltiades and his lancers would have been put forth in vain.

So Syracuse, in turn, checked Grecian advance and made Rome's power and prestige possible; but had all the conditions of victory been neglected, it might have been the Greek rather than the Roman who finally entered Carthage. So with all the great battles of the world, from Tours and Hastings to Marston Moor and from Marston Moor, to Appommattox, the price of permanent success has been the guarding with jealous care the things for which men fought and died.

This ground was broken by cannon balls; the seed was sown in blood and agony; but if both patriotism and statesmanship do not guard the crop, our country will never reap the fruits of victory. Wise men and good men have told us that peace came fifteen years ago. Commercial men, grown rich by the misfortunes of the war, have lamented this age of "sentimental politics," and have longed for men of capacity and brains to come to the front and adjust all things upon the principles of a sixty day acceptance.

Great scholars, geniuses, and philosophers—men, from amid abstractions, books and theories, autocratic in their own sphere—have apologized for our rudeness and want of culture, and bid us cease our wranglings and observe more the manners and bearing of gentlemen; take a trip to Europe if you can, and see how we appear in the eyes of the world.

Wholesome advice, timely given and sorely needed, no doubt; yet none of us can forget that even Burke almost endorsed the sentiment that "no man is wiser for his learning." And Phillips has tersely told us: "That governments are not made, they grow; that the heart is the best logician; that character, which is but cousin to instinct, is a better guide than philosophy."

Wordsworth long since sang, amid some popular commotion of his time:

"A few strong instincts and few plain words,
Among the herdsmen of the Alps, have wrought
More for mankind, at this unhappy day,
Than all the pride of intellect and thought."

Clothed in whatever extravagance of language, or of poetic license, these expressions may be, all must concede that they contain the germ of truth. For since civilization's dawn, "a few strong instincts" among the masses of mankind have ploughed their way straight across the opinions and theories of some of the world's most eminent statesmen and philosophers, right on to human advancement and human freedom. That this instinct exists in a most marked degree among the American people, admits of no dispute. Their whole education and growth have tended not only to develop it, but foster and sharpen it.

Taking counsel of this instinct, and standing apart from all partisan feeling or partisan bias, there can be no doubt that there exists among the masses of the people of this country to day an indefinable feeling of apprehension, if not of dread. This comes from no want of faith in free institutions, nor any lack of physical growth or material development. The nation's wealth is everywhere. Science, art, literature and religion, philosophy and invention, have all brought their richest treasures and poured them at our feet. Yet when in the morning of the second century of the nation's life, in a government which rests on the purity of the ballot box and the free choice of the elector as its corner stone. American statesmanship tells us that it has so managed affairs in some way that months before a national election is held and before a choice has been recorded, or a ballot cast, one, two, three or four states of this union can dictate and absolutely determine the result in advance; it matters not, by what party, nor by whom, power like that may be wielded, you need not tell the "plain people" that something is wrong, and that something for which these brave men fought and fell, has not yet been achieved.

Realizing this fact, there is all the more reason why their survivors, standing by these graves and by every soldier-shrine in the republic to day, should "take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion," and highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation under God shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of people, by the people and for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Except we do this, we do but mock these sleeping dead. We do but mouth the words and jeer the memory of our martyred President.

Let us rather, indeed, resolve, that the government which our fathers sought to found and our brothers fought to save, shall be maintained—shall, full-orbed, rise higher and higher in the firmament of nations; shall be upheld, not only in its integrity and strength, but in its bright ideal as well—a government which enforces law, protects the citizen, relieves the oppressed, lifts up the lowly, revives hope, encourages industry, invites enterprise, fosters learning, disseminates knowledge, punishes crime, shields innocence and rewards virtue—a government, in which the rights of the humblest are equal to the rights of the mightiest, and the rights of the mightiest sacred as the rights of the meanest—in short, "a government of the people, by the people, and for the people," moving on harmoniously in all parts, and leading the nations of the earth forward, and up ward to higher and grander possibilities.

This is the ideal of our hope; this the sheet anchor of our faith. Whoever cherishes this hope is with us, and of us; whoever opposes it, is against us. To uphold this ideal, these fields were stained with blood, and these valleys filled with the bodies of the slain. The future is with the living, rather than with the dead. Those who sleep here, did all that man could do for his fellows. All that mortal could sacrifice for mortal they laid upon their country's altar—home, wife and child, the heart's fondest affections and life's best ambitions—and in place of these, accepted hardship, captivity and death. Whether what they did is appreciated or not, there will come back no response from them. They spoke their last word and went down to their final rest. And whether they shall be forgotten, whether their work shall be vindicated or whether it shall be basely betrayed, there will come up no murmur from all these silent acres. They spoke once and spoke forever. The language of their lives is written deep in the annals of their country. At Chancellorsville and Chickamauga, at Gettysburg and in the Wilderness, on a hundred different battlefields, the soldiers of the Republic have penned at epic in American history will be read and re-read while man remembers or God rewards.

Standing here between the living and the dead, between the sleeping hero and the surving comrade, between the struggling past and hopeful future, between the battle grounds of war and and the harvest fields of peace, let us strive to deal justly by the victor and the vanquished alike. If they would fitly honor these dead, we must not abate one jot or tittle from the story of their lives. We strew flowers upon their graves, we drop a passing tear upon the sod that covers them, we pay formal tribute to their memories and their worth; but if these tears and these tributes, like these flowers, are to vanish in to-morrow's sun, then, indeed, have we mocked our dead with idle ceremonies and empty words. These men were men of acts and deeds; they dealt little in sentiment, less in ceremony. It matters not so much to them how we talk as what we do. What they would want to know and what their surviving comrades are most anxious to understand, is, whether this country, in truth and in fact, is rehabilitated in the garments of national unity, and forever dedicated to the equal rights of man.

Speaking by these graves we must not forget that the true soldier never cherished any feeling of hatred and revenge toward a fallen foe. Rather let us remember that the South as well as the North, has its maimed and dead soldiers; that its homes were made desolate and its fields laid waste by the ravages of remorseless war; that it was touched by the keenest disappointments and wounded in its most sensitive pride. It was scarcely master of its own actions. What it needed was justice, not jugglery; firmness not flattery; and the highest wisdom and the broadest generosity extended to it whenever it accepted in good faith the new order of things.

Far be it from us to indulge in taunt or exultation here. We can respect the filial feeling which strews flowers upon the graves of its dead, or rears monuments to their memories. But we can never justify any attempt, either by word, act or deed, to revive or perpetuate the cause that went down in the conflict of arms, nor can we ever concede that he who attempts to destroy his country engages in a cause as high and holy as he who fights to preserve it. Were we to say aught else, our late opponents would know that we uttered that which we did not mean, and would justly credit us with pretentious assumption or hollow hearted hypocrisy. Instead of this, let us cultivate a feeling of mutual frankness, mutual forbearance and mutual respect.

Let mercy to the many be coupled with justice to all, and let the rights of none be bartered to purchase the favor of any. But as a united people, lamenting the past and cherishing the future, let the nation leap forward in a career of prosperity and growth which shall prove an unmixed blessing to mankind.

In this spirit and to this end, would to God that the flowers, which, like the dews of heaven descend upon our country to-day, might bury beneath them the last vestige of sectional hatred and ill will. But whether this shall be so, or whether it shall not; whether good or evil counsels shall prevail; whether peace shall remain, or whether violence and tumult shall drive it away, those who sleep here have done their part and done it well. Here let them rest, amid the glories of the day and the solemn stillness of the star-lit night.

Sleep on, in honor, peace and love, so long as Pennsylvania's field shall bloom and bear—so long as this Doric shaft shall lift itself in beauty to the sky—yea, so long as summer's descending sun shall bathe yonder mountain tops in glory.

CLOSING OUT SALE

OF

OF

DRY GOODS, MILLINERY & CARPETS.

McKey & Bro.

Having leased for a term of years the building now being erected by A. P. Bennett, Esq., on the corner of Milwaukee & River streets in this city, WILL COMMENCE IMMEDIATELY the greatest closing out sale ever known in the mercantile annals of Wisconsin.

Description of McKey & Bro.'s New Store.

The block will be 44 feet in front by 130 feet in depth, three stories high with a basement. It is to be built of Milwaukee pressed brick with Joliet cut sand stone trimmings, and when finished it will be the handsomest building in the city.—McKEY & BRO. will occupy the whole of the first story and basement. The front will be finished in black and gold, with French plate glass windows. A series of circular windows over the shelving on the River street side will furnish a uniform volume of light for the whole store.—The counters and shelving are to be made after the most approved modern designs. The front of the store, 100x42, is to be used for the display of Dry Goods and Millinery, while the Carpet department will occupy the rear part, 30x42, raised three steps above the front level. The basement with a high ceiling and admirably lighted by numerous windows in front and rear, and along the River street side will be utilized for storage and wholesale purposes. The office will be in the southwest corner, and is to be provided with a fire proof vault and appropriate furniture. This will be, when completed, the most elegant mercantile establishment in the State, and having been built expressly for a first class Dry Goods Store, without regard to expense, it will be absolutely perfect in all its appointments.

TO THE PEOPLE!

Having concluded to open their new store with an entirely fresh stock of goods, McKey & Bro. have determined to CLOSE OUT in the meantime every dollar's worth of DRY GOODS, MILLINERY and CARPETS now on hand.

This sale is absolutely peremptory and will involve the GREATEST SACRIFICE of goods ever known in the West. McKey & Bro. fully realize the necessity of putting down prices in order to effect so large a sale in so short a time. They will, therefore, contemporaneously with the publication of this announcement make a general and comprehensive reduction in prices in every department of the house.

Every person in Rock county needing supplies of Dry Goods, Millinery or Carpets is invited to participate in the benefits of this great sale. No such opportunity is likely to occur again IN THE LIFE TIME of any one now living. This is no humbug gotten up for diversion or to deceive the people, but is on the contrary a BONA FIDE sale, made imperative by the circumstances already narrated. Every Mechanic, Artisan, Farmer and everybody engaged in business or professional pursuits can and ought to save money by buying their goods of McKey & Bro during the next 60 days. The store now occupied by McKey & Bro., being Nos. 24 and 26 Main street, is to rent from and after September 1, 1880.

MR. JAMES I. FELLOWS,

Dear Sir—During the past two years, I have given your Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites a fair though somewhat severe trial in my practice, and am able to speak with confidence of its effects. In restoring persons suffering from emaciation and the debility following Diptheria, it has done wonders. I constantly recommend its use in all affections of the throat and lungs. In several cases considered hopeless, it has given relief, and the patients are fast recovering. Among these are consumptive and old bronchial subjects, who e diseases have resisted the other modes of treatment. For impaired digestion, and in fact for debility from any cause, I know of nothing equal to it. Its direct effect in strengthening the nervous system, renders it suitable for the majority of diseases.

I am, sir, yours truly. WM. S. HOWE, M D

My practice not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with years of experience and evidence to sustain it, does not tear down, make sick to make well; no harsh treatment, no trifling, no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed; no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of Chronic diseases exclusively; no encouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinions, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything, or cure everybody, but do lay claim to reason and common sense. From the New York Sun.

A knot of spectators sweltered in the broiling sun at noon yesterday at Thirteenth street, North River. Every few minutes a youngster would strip himself of his scanty apparel, dive from the pier into the river, and reappear vastly refreshed, to the envy of those who preferred the risk of a sunstroke to one from a policeman's club. Toward 1 p. m. a tall, slim young man appeared on the pier, and, after leisurely stripping and donning a suit of tights, ran nimbly up the shrouds of a large schooner's mainmast and stood in the cross trees. A minute later his white skin glistened in the sun as he flashed through the air in his descent into the water. Emerging a few seconds later, he with a few strokes gained the schooner's side and mounted to the deck. The height from which he leaped was about eighty feet.

Lewis E Thomas, the performer of the feat, is 23 years old, five feet eleven and a half inches high, and weighs about one hundred and fifty-five pounds. He is a native of New York, though of Welsh parentage. He belongs to the 71st regiment Athletic club, and has since his boyhood practiced Sam Patch's style of leaping from a height. When a boy of 14 he leaped from the yard of a ship into the water, a distance of over one hundred feet. The leap would have been made from a greater distance yesterday had the facilities been afforded. He proposes to make leaps this summer from nearly twice the height from which the leap was made yesterday. After a few minutes' rest the leap was repeated. His style is peculiar. As he launches himself into the air Thomas fairly makes a spread-eagle of himself, his arms and legs waiving in the air at first, but gradually getting in a heap together, and when within a few feet of the water he straightens out and goes down feet foremost. Should he fall in the waters as he starts the shock would certainly kill him, but the change of position is suddenly and skilfully made. He says the only pain felt is that occasioned by the water parting his tossed he enters that element. On Tuesday Thomas made a 96 foot leap from the arm of a derrick foot of Thirteenth street. He desires to challenge Boyd, the English swimmer, who is now making 110 feet leaps on the Mississippi river from a spar rigged on a float or a flat boat, which is towed from town to town along the river. Thomas concluded his performance by making a Spanish dive. This consisted in rolling himself into a ball and launching himself in a heap in the water from a height of thirty feet, the object being to make a huge splash, which was effectually accomplished, as the clothing of the bystanders testified. Thomas proposes to jump off the East river bridge this summer, if permitted.

Senator Windom's Youth.

From the Deadwood (Black Hills) Daily Times.

The writer of this in his youth was well acquainted with William Windom, his first remembrance being of the time when, small boys, they sat together on the same seat in the old brick meeting house in Knox county, Ohio, in which the Owl Creek meeting of Hicksite Friends on the first and fifth day of each week assembled to worship. He also remembers the first pair of boots he ever had were made for William Windom, but William's feet were too large for the leather, and the writer became possessed of them by purchase. And he also remembers when Windom was apprenticed, as was Andrew Johnson, to learn the tailor trade.

It was thought in those days that every boy should have a trade and the writer was taught to make shoes in the little hamlet of Palmyra, and he learned to make good ones and never learned to make anything else. On the contrary, Windom stayed with his boss in Fredericktown, Ohio, just long enough to become disgusted with heating the goose for jours and sewing carpet rags, and then, unfortunately for his clients commenced reading law. When it became known among the Friends that William had abandoned the shears and taken up Blackstone, it became a subject of serious thought among the older members, as Friends have no use for lawyers, and his parents, Hezekiah and Mercy, became the recipients of the sympathy of all their friends at the loss of their son who had gone over to the world's people.

Friends have progressed since that day, the rebellion having more to do with it than anything else, as a greater proportion of young Quakers went into the Army than any other denomination, and they generally went with the consent of their parents, and could be depended upon, as they went on principle.

Peradventure This is a Lie.

One of those characteristic Nevada stories is thus briefly told by The Virginia Enterprise of the 11th inst.: "Yesterday, during the gale, while boulders as big as pumpkins were flying through the air and water pipes were being ripped out of the ground, an old Chinaman, with spectacles on his nose, was observed in the eastern part of the town, seated on a knoll, flying his kite—an iron shutter, with a log-chain for a tail."

An Exception.

From the Hartford Post.

In the early stages of the ministry the celebrated Dr. Strong, of Hartford, preached some time in a neighboring village. One day a committee called upon him to settle for his services, and, after stammering awhile, signified to him that his further services were not desired. "What does this mean, gentlemen?" asked the doctor. "Why," replied the spokesman, with some hesitation, "the people have got the impression that you are inclined to universal salvation." "Gentlemen," answered the doctor, "I never have preached that doctrine; but if I ever should, I promise to make the people of this town an exception."

CLINTON.

—Rev Elias Hatch, of Vermont, is now visiting his brother, E E Hatch, and other Clinton friends.

—Rev C C Merston, it is expected, will soon sail for Europe on an excursion of several weeks duration.

—Quite a number of our citizens took in the Chicago Convention last week, and more would have gone if there had not been so much uncertainty about getting seats inside of the great amphitheater.

—The salesmen of the Clinton Cheese Factory dispersed of above three thousand pounds last week, at ten and one-half cents per pound.

—Mr Richardson, of our village, is on the sick list.

—Some of our citizens attended the closing exercises of the Deaf and Dumb Institute, at Delavan, on the 8th instant, and found them unusually interesting. There were five students of marked ability and intelligence in the graduating class.

—D G Marsh, the Clinton census ennumerator, is busy with his labors in gathering up facts and figures, and takes hold of this business like a veteran.

—Clinton will be well represented at the soldiers' re-union in Milwaukee this week.

—The recent heavy rains cause vegetation to grow with great rapidity especially weeds in the corn fields.

—Mrs J B Smith is dangerously ill with typhus pneumonia.

Do not allow some other plaster to be palmed off under a similar sounding name, with the assurance that it is the same thing or as good. Extract from Report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue;

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF INTERNAL REVENUE, WASHINGTON, D. C., January 26, 1880.

Messrs. LAWRENCE & MARTIN, 111 Madison St., Chicago, Ills:

GENTLEMEN: I have received a "certified formula" giving the ingredients and relative proportions used in the manufacture of an article which you advertise and sell under the name of "TOLU, ROCK and RYE." This compound, according to your formula, in the opinion of this office, would have a sufficient quantity of the BALSAM OF TOLU to give it all the advantages ascribed to this article in pectoral complaints, while the whisky and the syrup constitute an emulsion rendering the compound an agreeable remedy to the patient.

In the opinion of this office, an article compounded according to this formula may properly be classed as a medicinal preparation under the provisions of Schedule A, following Section 3,457, U. S. Revised Statutes, and when so stamped may be sold by Druggists, Apothecaries and Other Persons without rendering them liable to pay special tax as liquor dealers.

Yours Respectfully, (Signed) GREEN B. RAUM, Commissioner.

The best water-softener made.

The best disinfectant.

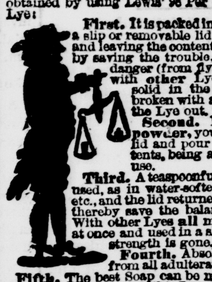
The following are some of the advantages obtained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:



First. It is packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles), as with other Lyes, which, being sold in the cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

THE GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 9, 1880.

Official Paper of the City and County.

BRIEFLETS.

—Hurrah for Garfield!

—The sprinkling carts still take a rest.

—If this kind of weather keeps up, what's the use of having water works?

—A harper and a pair of violinists made music in the air to-day, and passed around the hat.

—St. Mary's Catholic church are to have a picnic at Buob's grove on the 16th inst. Tally one.

—One of the new buildings at Delavan, to be used by the deaf and dumb, is ready for its roof. Quick work.

—Miss Battle and Miss Kunkle are preparing to give a musical and elocutionary entertainment soon, in Lappin's hall.

—If the weather don't change soon the paragraphers' association will be forced to advance the price of good jokes on bad weather.

—There is a move for a big Sunday school celebration of Raikes Centennial, to take place here soon, and in which several schools are expected to unite.

—There is the usual crop of fellows who say "That's just what I thought"—"I told you so." It is surprising how easy it is to make a post fact prophecy.

—C. A. Carter drops us a postal from Columbus, saying that he is bound for the Milwaukee reunion, but has to stop long enough first to give some big "Hurrah for Garfield."

—It is rather refreshing to glance over our county exchanges without having the eye tired with the many repetitions of the urging to "bring in wood to pay your subscriptions."

—Hon. J. B. Cassoday returned this afternoon from the Chicago Convention, and was most cordially received, and called on to shake hands many times over the good work which he helped on in the Convention.

—A dog supposed to be mad caused a flurry in the Third ward yesterday afternoon. Armed officers hurried to the spot, but careful investigation saved the dog's life, as it proved he was only exhausted, and not mad.

—The shutting up of the cows now commences in dead earnest. Mayor Cobb says there's to be no make-believe moyee, but the wandering bovines, regardless of who owns them, will be driven into the pound. Cow owners will save time and money by looking after their stock.

—Miss Emilie Gavin, who has already become a favorite here, is to appear again at the Opera house next Monday evening and give an elocutionary entertainment. The house should be thronged, for she will surely give a treat as all will bear witness who have heard her. Miss Lillian De Long and Miss Lizzie Battle will assist her.

—W. T. Vankirk was ready for it, and when the news came of Garfield's nomination, he had the boys fill up the cannon and blaze away. He also flung his banner to the breeze, it being a bit of cotton cloth bearing the words "Garfield and Victory." There's nothing like starting in enthusiastically and there is no fear of having to pull down that flag.

—Beloit has been losing a number of its old residents lately. Monday night another, Otis Manchester, departed this life, quite unexpectedly. He was aged 85 years, but seemed in ordinary health until the evening of his death. He was for years an active business man in Utica, N. Y., and moved to Beloit twenty-five years ago. His funeral took place this afternoon.

Newly furnished, everything the best, ASTOR HOUSE, NEW YORK.

THE WEATHER.

REPORTED BY PRENTICE & EVENSON DRUGGISTS.

The thermometer at 6 o'clock last evening stood at 70 degrees above; at 1 o'clock a. m., to-day at 62 degrees above; at 7 o'clock a. m., at 67 degrees above, and at 1 o'clock p. m., at 81 degrees above. A heavy shower early this morning, followed by partly cloudy weather.

The indications to-day are for the upper lake region, falling barometer, winds mostly south, slightly warmer, clear or partly cloudy weather, followed by increasing cloudiness and rain.

A ZOOLOGICAL GARDEN.

Burr Robbins appears now to have a new enterprise on the brain. It is no less a project than to establish a zoological garden at Lake Geneva. Intelligence comes from there that he has already bargained for a portion of Black Point, with this end in view. It would prove an additional attraction to that favorite summer resort.

OFF FOR MILWAUKEE.

Last evening the Bower City Rifles, and the Janesville Guards left for Milwaukee The former company had about 32 men the latter 49. There was an enthusiastic send off at the depot, and the boys went in good spirits, and full of hope. A number of our citizens went on the same train, and this morning a large number followed. The militiamen intended to improve their time at Milton, while waiting for the train, by having a stalwart drill on the platform there.

FORBES' FAREWELL.

Next Saturday Forbes' Dramatic Company is to close its season by giving two exhibitions here, in the Opera house. At the matinee Uncle Tom's Cabin will be given, and in the evening the company will give "Asa Whitcomb," brother to Josh. Forbes has been here before, and the people need to be told little concerning the character of the proferred entertainments. They drew large houses and gave general satisfaction on their last visit, and we expect they will do the same sort of a thing this time. The prices are in accordance with the popular demand, the highest priced ticket being only fifty cents, and the lowest ten cents.

The Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Mich., Will send their celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts to the afflicted upon 30 days trial. Speedy cures guaranteed. They mean what they say Write to them without delay. nov17dawly

THE PHARMACISTS.

The Rock County Pharmaceutical Society have decided to hold their next meeting at Madison July 15 and 16. It is also planned to called together at that time the leading druggists from all parts of the State, for the purpose of organizing a State Association. The arrangements have so far been completed as to indicate that it will be a general rally of the druggists, and that it will be an event of great interest and crowned with merited success. The Assembly chamber has been secured for the meetings, reduced railroad fare and hotel rates have been arranged, and already some have engaged rooms. A number of dealers, manufacturers, etc, including some from the East have already announced their intention of having exhibitions of their goods. Some interesting scientific papers will be read of great practical worth, and in fact everything seems to be working together for good, with the promise of having a State Association formed with a big boom.

A SURPRISE.

The "Telegram and Gazette," New London, Conn., says. "A matter that now is exciting more than ordinary surprise, is the manner in which Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure, and other of Warner's Safe Remedies have leaped into popularity; they are a positive success."

When a customer comes in and looks at our goods, and after going around town and examining goods and prices in all the other clothing stores, comes back and buys of us, we think that is good evidence that we are selling a little better goods and at a little lower prices than anybody else.
